Thursday 16th April 2020

Dear Paula,

I am writing to you to let you know what I've been up to. Also, that I am missing you very much. I have lots of royal duties I must do but how bored I am! You would think with all this power as a queen I would be able to get some time off to relax.

It has been non-stop with me. One minute they want me to open a new building, I opened the library in Hastings yesterday, and the next minute they want me to visit the local schools. Whilst I love visiting them sometimes I just wish I could have some time to see my friends. Being a royal isn't all its cracked up to be. People think with all this power we would be happy! Well I'm not, I have decided I need a holiday and the prince can look after the castle while I'm gone.

Let me tell you why! Yesterday, the prince was very naughty. While we were walking in our beautiful royal gardens (the prettiest gardens you will ever see), the prince decided to jump into the pond. How smelly he was! I couldn't believe it. He seems to think he can just do what he likes. Often, he plays tricks on me and other people in the castle, even putting a frog down the toilet so it jumped out. So, I have decided he needs to learn some responsibility and he can look after the castle while I go on holiday.

Anyway, what have you been up to? Would you like to come on holiday with me? I would really love to go camping. Please write back to me.

Love From

Queen Catherine

Coats of arms

Coats of Arms date back to the early medieval period. In the Twelfth Century helmets and other armour were making it hard to tell friends from enemies. To help stop this each knight and soldier to paint something personal on their shield. These designs were very important in battle (Why?), but they also acted like team uniforms (can you tell me any famous designs that you know?) when knights met in tournaments.

Below are some examples of different ones

The different colours and animals on the coat of arms had different meanings. The information on the next page will show you this.

Your challenge is to design your own coat of arms to represent you. Remember to use the colour and animal guide on the next page to decide what you want your coat of arms to represent.

Colours

Colour	Meaning
Yellow or Gold	Generosity
White Or Silver	Peace and Sincerity
Black	Constancy (loyal)
Blue	Loyalty and truthfulness
Red	Warrior, Strong
Green	Hope and Joy
Purple	Royal Majesty, Justice

Animals

Bear	Protectiveness
Dog	Loyal
Double Eagle/Eagle	Leader and Decisiveness
Dragon	Defender of treasure
Fox	Clever
Lion	Courage
Snake	Ambition
Unicorn	Extreme courage
